Number 22

LEAGUE WILL SEND PARTY TO HUMBOLDT.

The Young Men's Business League, at its regular meeting, made an appropriation for all expenses of a party of ten or fifteen persons to visit Humboldt, Tenn., for the purpose of acquainting themselves with the truck-growing business, which is carried on on a large scale around that city. The junket will last a couple or three days and is to be taken some time next week.

Ten representative farmers interested in the truck-growing proposition and representing different sections in this vicinity, are to be named to go on this trip. They will be accompanied by two or three members of the league. The purpose of the visit, of course, is to get information first hand; see how and what these successful growers are doing; in short, to learn what truck-growing means to those farmers and their town.

The Business League is going to make a go of the proposition at Hickman—in fact, it is already assured—and they are anxious to do everything possible to facilitate matters and make it a big success from the very start. The hundred or more dollars spent on sending a delegation to Humboldt is calculated to be money well spent. Should the League never accomplish more than the establishment of truck-growing here, they will have done a good work—a splendid monument to the organization's memory.

TALK LESS OF WAR—MORE OF BUSINESS.

"Don't talk war; talk business!"

We are overplaying the war. Big and bad as it has been to date; bigger and worse it may look in the future, we cannot make it better by thinking of nothing else.

Things are not so bad.

It's time to get our grip on the affairs of peace.

We have met the first shock of big surprise. We have passed through it and found ourselves alive. Let's act like live men.

Let's get our pride to work. Let's sting into action that native enterprise we used to boast so greatly. Let's go ahead—war or no war. Let's go after fall and winter business in Hickman. And then Christmas is almost in sight.

"Don't talk war; talk business!"

The great battles in Europe need no press agent. They're making themselves heard all over the world every morning and evening. The newspapers will keep folks informed about them, as they must be informed.

"Don't talk war; talk business!"

This is not only a salesman's job; it's the customer's job, too. No man can buy goods intelligently while he's trying to figure out what Turkey's going to do or how far the Zeppelins can sail.

He is doing himself an injustice. He is hurting his own interests. Cool, calm talk of how he can beat war's attack on his business or how he may meet the conditions of things is one thing; empty war talk is another. That is the kind of talk that is throwing monkey wrenches into the machinery of every day trade in Hickman. Come out of it; wake up; get busy. Talk business!

The Rees Lee en route from Memphis to St. Louis Thursday, ran aground near the "point" at Cairo, where she remained for nearly three hours before she managed to free herself. The river is very low now and the channel near the "point" is somewhat of a Chinese puzzle.

Judge Stahr, County Attorney J. W. Roney and Sheriff Bailey Huddleston were in Fulton Thursday, for the purpose of trying W. R. King, arrested last week in Birmingham and charged with unlawful detaining Mrs. Byers, of Riceville. Mr. King was found not guilty.

Go to the Crystal tonight.

BALTZER & DODDS D. G. STORE BURGLARIZED.

Thieves entered Baltzer & Dodds Dry Goods Co. store Sunday night, by prizing open a back window, and made way with merchandise probably worth $100.

Three suits of clothing, two shirts, probably ten or a dozen neckties are missing. Other articles may have been taken, but there is no way of ascertaining.

Entrance was gained by using a locomotive poker to prize up a rear window, which was secured only with a nail driven above it. The thief's first plan was to cut the putty from one of the glass, but abandoned this scheme after cutting out about half way around the glass. No tangible clue was left by the fellow who pulled off this job, but it is thought the officers have a pretty good idea who did it, and are quietly at work on the case.

LEVEE WORK IN BEND NOW UNDER WAY.

Contractors are now actively engaged on the 7 or 8 miles of levee work at Madrid Bend, in the lower end of this county, and work is going ahead in good shape. The work extends from Slough Landing down to Dick Carrigan's place.

It might also be mentioned that the city of New Madrid looks for trouble from this source. Referring to it the Record says: "Now that contractors are at work constructing a levee to protect Madrid Bend, Kentucky, opposite the city of New Madrid, we may look for the water level at this place to be some higher, when the river gets out of its banks. We shall need a levee—and need it badly—on this side of the river."

Next Thursday is Thanksgiving.

OVER $400 FOR ONE WAGON LOAD OF PECANS.

Yes Kelly & Son probably are entitled to the blue ribbon for the largest load of pecans ever brought to Hickman—if not in the entire state—for market. Mr. Kelley brought in a load Saturday which weighed 4278 pounds.

These were sold to J. C. Newton, of East Hickman, at close to ten cents a pound, bringing Mr. Kelly something over $400 in coin of the realm.

Kentucky pecans are probably the finest in the world and always command a price in excess to the general run of nuts.

J. A. Frazier, of the central part of the state, was here last week for the purpose of purchasing mules for the French army. He bought 14 head, at prices ranging from $125 to $140 each.

F. D. E. ASSOCIATION AT FULTON, NOV. 22-23.

The First District Educational Association will meet at Fulton, Nov. 27th and 28th. A very strong and interesting program, on which appears the names of some renowned educational leaders, has been arranged. Among them, we find the name of Dr. Fordyce, of the University of Nebraska, Miss Cora Benedict, Pres. Woman's National River and Harbor Congress, J. H. Kirkland, Chancellor of Vanderbilt University, and others.

Prof. J. C. Cheek and County Supt. Miss Virginia Luten are anxious that Fulton county be well represented on this occasion.

James M. D'Armon died Wednesday morning, Nov. 11th, at Clinton, aged sixty-nine years and two months. He was an expert watch maker.

GEM THEATRE RE-OPENED. PUTMAN IS MANAGER.

The old Gem Theatre, motion picture show has been leased by R. V. Putnam, also the new manager of the Hickman Laundry, and was opened for business Monday evening. The property was recently acquired by Messrs. J. O. West and Chief John Wright, who have executed the lease to Mr. Putnam.

The new manager has christened his playhouse the "White Elephant," but he couldn't get ready to open on Friday, the 13th. Here's hoping the new manager finds his venture anything but the meaning carried with the name he has selected.

Mrs. Lewis, a very clever and accomplished pianist, has been engaged to furnish music.

Admission will be 5c and 10c. Shows will be given only at night, except Saturdays, when a matinee will be put on.

ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY.

Mrs. Myrtle Walker Delph extended her charming hospitality to a few of her friends Friday evening from 8 to 10:30 at 500. The rooms were thrown open to the guests and were prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and roses. Cupids tied with pink and green ribbon hung from the doors. The guests were cordially received by Mesdames Myrtle Delph and L. C. Moss, the former wearing a gown of black net over crepe de chine. Following the games a delicious salad course, ice heart shaped sandwiches and coffee were served. At this point envelopes were passed to the guests each containing a toast which were given. After the reading of the toasts, Mrs. L. C. Moss entered with a telegram announcing the wedding of Miss Myrtle Walker to T. Grant Delph. Congratulations were tendered the bride and the wedding book signed by each guest. Those that were so fortunate as to be present were: Mesdames C. L. Walker, Chester Barnes, A. E. Kennedy, Pauline Shumate, K. A. Mitchell, L. A. Stone, W. B. Amberg, J. W. Meacham, R. L. Bradley, C. T. Bondurant, J. H. Millet, Nannie Kingman, F. M. Maddox, T. R. Powell, Jessie Dillon, C. G. Schlenker, Kate Webb Smith, F. M. Case, A. R. Stone, Will Bondurant, Misses Leah Barry, Irene Faris, Bertie May and Magalee Rice, Rubye Fleming, Bonnie Carpenter, Dora Cavitt, Homer Green, Frankye Reid, Dottie Davidson; visitor, Miss Lillian Shumate, of Tiptonville, Tenn.

The announcement of the marriage came, of course, as a great surprise. The wedding occurred at Newport, Ky., on Oct. 24th, at which time the bride was away on a "visit," and no one suspected the romance and its happy culmination. The marriage vows were taken at the Presbyterian church, Rev. T. W. Rainey officiating. The only witnesses were four gentlemen composing a quartette, who sang during the wedding.

The groom, T. Grant Delph, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Delph, and holds a responsible position in the passenger department of the L. & N. Ry. Co. of fices at Louisville.

The bride is a well known and accomplished young lady of Hickman, coming to this city from Louisville several years ago. She is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Nimrod Walker, and has a large circle of friends here who join in wishing her and the gentleman of her choice all the good things of life.

Mr. and Mrs. Delph left Sunday (he having arrived here Saturday) for Cincinnati and other points on a wedding trip, after which they will be at home in Louisville.

George A. Morgan, prominent farmer, took his own life at six o'clock Monday morning with a pistol while standing in the front yard at his home three miles south of Mayfield on the Sedalia road. Worry over the continued illness of his wife, to whom he was lovingly devoted, is thought to have caused him to commit the deplorable act.

Fire almost completely destroyed the plant of the Roberts Cotton Seed Oil Company, at Cairo, Saturday, and caused damage estimated at more than $100,000. This company owns and operates a gin in this city.

TRIUMPH OF SCIENCE.

The report of Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller institute, that he has found the germ of infantile paralysis, is of infinitely more importance than was the discovery of the North Pole. This terrible disease, which every year takes the lives of so many thousand children or wrecks their bodies with pain and leaves them twisted and shrunken, has always evaded the efforts of medical scientists. A year ago Dr. Flexner announced that he was sure infantile paralysis was a germ disease, and believed he had succeeded in cultivating the germ, but had never been able to see it. Now, there is no doubt left. He has isolated the germ, which is inconceivably minute, and has made it visible under a high-power microscope. And by infecting animals with this germ culture, he has proven that the disease is transmissible.

More than that, he has discovered the process of transmission. The germs enter the child's body, he says, through the mucous membranes of the mouth, nose or lungs. Knowing this, the doctors can proceed intelligently to prevent the spread of the disease. The next step will be a discovery of a serum or antitoxin, which will counteract the effects of the paralysis germs.

MORE STRENGTH FOR OLD PEOPLE

Mrs. Hutchison—Eighty-One Years Old—Uses No Other Tonic but Vinol and Recommends It to Friends.

Greenville, S. C.—"It is with pleasure I tell others of the great benefit I have derived from Vinol, for the past several years. I am 81 years old and I find Vinol gives me strength, a healthy appetite and overcomes nervous disorders. Vinol is the only tonic reconstructor I have used for several years. I have recommended it to a great many of my friends and it has always proved satisfactory."—Mrs. M. A. HUTCHISON, Greenville, S. C.

Such cases as the above are constantly coming to our attention. If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand.

It is the tissue building, curative elements of the cod's liver, aided by the blood making strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol, that makes it so successful in building up strength for old people, delicate children and for all run-down conditions. Vinol is also a most successful remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. If it fails to benefit any one who tries it we return your money. Helm & Ellison Druggists.

GOES TO MIDDLE TENN.

Rev. W. L. King has accepted a call as pastor of the churches at Centerville and Hohenwald, in Middle Tennessee. He has been pastor of the West Hickman Baptist church for many years, but resigned a short time ago, in order to take a larger field. Next Sunday is his last preaching date at Hickman, and all members of his church are urged to attend both morning and evening services. Morning subject: "What I Desire this Church to Be." Evening subject will be found in Gen. 49:22-24.

FARIS SELLS HIS COAL BUSINESS TO WRIGHT.

Chief John Wright purchased this week the coal business of A. A. Faris. He will continue the same grades of coal as carried by Mr. Faris, which includes the famous Pittsburg. Mr. Faris retires after many years in the coal business in this city, and would certainly feel "lost" in any other line, unless it be piloting a steamboat. We are not aware of his future business plans.

The House Divided.

Alone in that strange place of silence and shadows—that den of the devil's livery, crimson and black—chained to the invalid chair wherein, day in, day out, for years on end, he had suffered the Promethean torments of the life that would not die out of his wretched, wrecked carcass, though without ceasing sharp-beaked envy, hatred, malice and all uncharitableness pecked insatiably at his vitals: Seneca Trine sat waiting, with the impassivity of a graven figure waiting on the imminent hour of ultimate avengement for the wrong that had made him what he was.

"Another hour! . . . In sixty minutes more they will be here, Judith and Marrophat and Rose—poor fool!—and him! . . . In sixty minutes more they will put him down before me, bound and helpless, if not dead."

A slight pause prefaced words that were a whispered prayer: "God send that he be not dead! Have I lingered here in anguish all these weary years for the fulfillment of my revenge only to be cheated at the end by Death? God grant that Alan Law may be laid down still living here at my feet! . . . Then . . .

A bitter smile twisted his tortured features: "Then shall my will be done to him! And then, when I have seen him die as his father died—then—Ah, God!—then at last I too may die!"

There was a long silence, then a groan of exasperated protest: "Why do they not come? Why does Judith delay, when she knows how I suffer? Why have I been put off from day to day with her telegrams that begged for more time and promised everything—but told nothing!—until yesterday. . . . Where are those messages she sent me yesterday?"

His one sound hand groped out like a claw and sought a mass of papers on the desk beside him, sorting out from among them two yellow forms. Painfully he blinked over these and slowly his pain-bent lips coned their wording:

"Alan and Rose safe with me—will bring both home tomorrow night without fail," he read the first aloud; and then the second: "Have motorcar waiting for me tomorrow morning from three o'clock till called for New Bedford waterfront—Judith."

"No!" he affirmed with the fervor of one persuaded by his own desires: "I must not doubt the girl! She has promised, she has performed!"

So still was he, indeed, that he seemed to sleep, but so deceptive was the semblance that he was alert for the least sound. The girl entered softly, as if fearful of disturbing his slumbers; but she found him with head erect and eyes a-blaze.

"Judith!" he cried, his great voice vibrating like a brazen bell. "At last! Where is he? You have brought him? Where is he?"

With no more answer than a sigh, the girl drooped her head and let her hands hang limply with palms exposed.

After an instant of incredulous disappointment the man shot a single, frigid question at her:

"You have failed?"

"I have failed," she confessed.

"Why?"

She shrugged slightly. "Who knows why one fails? I did my best: he was too much for me, outwitted me at every turn. Time and again I thought I had him, but always he escaped, either by his own wit and courage or with another's aid. Only yesterday night they were all three in the hollow of my hands—but now I bring you only Rose."

She faltered, awed by the glare of his infuriated eyes. "Let me explain," she begged.

He snapped her short: "You cannot explain. The thing is impossible, that you should have failed. There is something beneath this, something you will not tell me."

She endeavored to speak, but he enforced silence with a sonorous "No!"

His hand sought the row of buttons on the desk and pressed one long.

Almost instantly a servant glided noiselessly into the room.

"My daughter Rose—have her brought here to me at once!"

In another moment the replica of his daughter Judith was ushered into his presence.

Upon this one he loosed the lightning of his wrath without ruth.

Rose suffered him in silence. His most galling recrimination elicited no retort from this one.

In a lull in Trine's tirade, Judith chose to interject: "Don't be so hard on the silly fool; she's not responsible; she's sick with love for that good-looking simpleton!"

"And you!" Rose turned on her passionately—"what about you? If I love Alan Law, at least I love him openly. I am not ashamed to own it—and I don't pursue him, as you do, pretending I mean to sacrifice him to a wicked family feud, and then spare him every time I meet him, to lead him to believe I haven't the heart to injure him—as you do, hoping so to work upon his sympathies and earn a kindly word and a pat on the head from his hand!"

Piercely she leveled a denunciatory arm at her sister. "There!" she cried to her father—"if you need to know—there stands the daughter who has betrayed your faith—as I have not, who have never even pretended to approve your villainy!"

"I think," Trine announced in a voice of ice—"I have learned now what I needed to know."

His fingers sought the row of buttons; and when a servant responded, he inquired:

"Mr. Marrophat has returned?"

"He is in the waiting room, sir."

"Conduct Miss Judith to him and tell him I hold him personally responsible for her safe-keeping. He will understand."

And for a long time thereafter the father, alone with the daughter who had been estranged from him since birth by every instinct of her nature, essayed in vain to break down her mutinous silence.

At last Trine summoned two of his creatures and had her led weeping from the rooms to be held prisoner in her bedchamber on the topmost floor of the house.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Sporting Offer.

Some two hours later, that same evening, Mr. Alan Law, very much alive and, in spite of a complete new outfit of ready-made clothing, looking much more like himself than he had in a fortnight, issued forth from the Grand Central station, hailed a taxicab, and had himself conveyed to the Hotel Monolith.

But if he looked his proper self once more, it speedily was demonstrated that his wish was otherwise: for after learning from the room-clerk of the Monolith that a suite was being held in the name of Arthur Lawrence, that was the name Mr. Law inscribed on the register.

On the other hand, it was his true name that he gave to the person whom he called upon the telephone immediately after being shown to his rooms. But then he was speaking to his old friend and man of business, Mr. Digby.

Within another ten minutes this last was in conference with his employer:

"I think you must be out of your head," he insisted nervously, once their first greetings were over. "You might just as sensibly throw yourself from the top of the Metropolitan tower as come to New York while Trine lives and knows you're this side the water."

"Nonsense!" Alan laughed. "Remember this is New York—not the backwoods of Maine!"

Alan paused and smote his palm with a remorseful fist. "By the Eternal, I'm forgetting Barcus!"

"Barcus?"

"Chap whose boat I chartered in Portland—sheer luck on my part: he's one of the salt of the earth. First, something must be done for the boy. You've got influence of some sort in New Bedford, surely?"

Digby reflected: "Some. There's George Blaine, justice of the peace—"

"The very man. Telegraph him in Barcus' interests immediately. And telegraph Barcus as well—send him a hundred for expenses, and tell him to join me here in New York as quick as he can!"

"Your friend's address?" Digby inquired, mildly ironic as he sat down at the desk and fumbled with the supply of stationery.

"New Bedford jail, of course!" Alan chuckled—but cut his laugh in two as something fluttered from the pack of envelopes which Digby had disturbed and fell to the floor between the two men.

Face up, it grinned sardonically mockery of Alan's confidence: it was a trey of hearts.

With an ashen face and a trembling hand, Digby stooped to pick the damned thing up; but Alan was beforehand with him, and got his fingers first upon the card.

"Now will you believe?" Digby demanded huskily.

"In what? A simple coincidence?" Alan flouted. "Not I! Who knows I'm in New York—or that the Arthur Lawrence for whom your agent engaged these rooms was Alan Law. No, my friend: it's a bit too thick for me. Take my word for it, this is nothing more nor less than a souvenir of a poker-party held by yesterday's tenant of this suite."

"Perhaps—perhaps!" Digby assented, stroking tremulous lips. "But I'm afraid for you, my boy. Who knows that Trine's spies were not watching my man when he made this reservation? Who knows but that 'Arthur Lawrence' was too thin a disguise for Alan Law? I tell you, I'm frightened to the marrow of my old bones! Do me this favor at least, my boy: now that you've been warned, whether by accident or design—we won't argue that—do leave town—go incognito to some quiet place near by and wait there for the sailing of the next transatlantic steamer. Oh, surely you can't deny me this one wish of my fond old heart, my boy!"

With a gesture of unfeigned affection Alan dropped a hand on Digby's shoulder.

"There's nothing on earth I would not do for you," he said: "you've been a father and a mother to me ever since I can remember, even if we were separated, most of the time, by three thousand miles of salt water. But this thing—I can't do it, even for you. I can't do it even for myself. Rose Trine is here in New York, in the hands and at the mercy of her father and sister: and you may judge what their mercy will be when you learn all that she has done for me. I won't go and I can't go until I find her and take her with me. And that is final."

"Then," Digby struck in, grasping wildly at a straw of hope, "I have your word you'll go, providing I find and restore Rose to you?"

"You have my word to that, unquestionably. Bring Rose to me, and I'll gladly shake the dust of New York from my shoes, and never return till Trine is put away comfortably in his grave."

"It shall be done," Digby promised. "It must!"

"You believe that?"

"In twelve hours Rose shall be restored to you."

"Will you make a book on it? I'll bet you something happens—and hope I lose into the bargain. If you believe you can carry out your promise, wire the White Star line to reserve the best available suite on the Oceanic, sailing tomorrow morning at ten—and make arrangements for a marriage before the boat sails."

"I'll go you," Digby agreed: "and if I fail, I forfeit the cost of the reservation. But about this marriage—"

He hesitated. "You'll have to have a license in this state—and can't get one except by applying in person with your bride-to-be. There won't be time—"

"Then we'll marry in Jersey!" Alan insisted. "Dig up some clergyman over there, if you don't know one yourself—"

"Oh, I'm well acquainted with the very man!"

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Time o' Night.

Not ill-pleased to be left to his own devices (whose proposed character Digby would never have approved had he so much as suspected them) Alan none the less deferred action until after midnight.

And espionage was all he feared—save and except always, of course, failure to find his Rose.

It was about one in the morning when he arrived inconspicuously (but not so much so as to seem deserving of police surveillance) in the neighborhood of the Riverside drive home of his mortal enemy, a grim white house that towered, stark and tall, upon a corner.

His preliminary reconnaissance provided little more than comfortable exercise. Huge, still, its wall bathed in the milk and ink of moonlight and shadow, all its windows dark but one—and that one, in the topmost tier, showed only a feeble glimmer, so slight that Alan almost overlooked it.

But once discovered, it focused upon itself his thoughts with a power little less than hypnotic.

He believed with small doubt that Rose was a prisoner within those walls; that Judith must have conveyed her there with all speed.

And, this being the presumptive case, that small, high window of the light might well be hers.

Directly across the street from the Trine residence, on the opposite corner, a colossal apartment structure stood half-finished, stonework to its second story, gaunt iron skeleton rearing above.

To his infinite disgust, Alan found the guardian very wide awake, very much on the job: no chance here to steal unseen into the building.

This in itself might have been deemed a suspicious circumstance: not for nothing does an honest night watchman so deny the laws of nature and the tenets of his craft. But Alan merely praised the man while cursing the very fact of his existence; and, accosting, overcame with blank notes what seemed an uncommonly stubborn reluctance, and got his way.

He could not know that another skulked behind a barrier of lime bar-

reals and overheard all that passed and, when Alan had ducked smartly into the unfinished building, rose and stole after him with footsteps as noiseless as a cat's and a face that had the savagery of a tiger's when it was transiently revealed in a shaft of moonlight.

At length Alan gained the gridiron of girders on a plane with the lighted window across the way, and crept along one of these, gingerly on his hands and knees, until he came to its end and might, if he cared to, look down a hundred feet to the sidewalk.

That view, however, did not tempt; he kept his eyes level; and was rewarded with a bare glimpse of a prettily-papered wall, framed in the lace of half-drawn curtains.

And of sudden—whether through fortuity, or instinct, or the psychological attraction of his steadfast concentration—the tenant of the room came to the window and stood there for a little, looking pensively out, altogether unconscious of the watcher in his aerial coil.

Again a horrible uncertainty harassed him. Was the woman Rose or Judith? That she was one of these he could plainly see. But which? Dared he assume his hopes fulfilled?

With difficulty he detached his hungry vision from her, and drawing from his pocket a small notebook, tore out a blank page, placed this flat on the girder, found a pencil, and with the assistance of a ray or two of moonlight scrawled a message of almost stenographic brevity.

When he looked up from this task, she had vanished.

Sitting up, astride the girder, he took his watch—a cheap affair he had picked up when reclothing himself in the garments of civilized society, at Providence, that morning—opened the back of the case, and closed it upon the folded message.

Then drawing back his arm, he breathed a silent prayer to the god of all true lovers, and cast it from him with all his might—with such force that it almost unseated him at the end of the swing. But nothing less would have served to bridge that yawning chasm.

And the watch flew straight and true, squarely through the lighted window and to the further wall.

At that very instant of his exultation over an obstacle overcome, he heard a sound behind him of heavy breathing.

The assassin had come that close upon his prey when Alan turned and discovered his peril.

The same moonbeam which had aided Alan in the composition of his message struck across the other's face, and showed it like a hideous Chinese mask of deadly hatred, with its eyeballs glaring and its lips drawn back from the naked blade gripped between its teeth—a stiletto nothing short of a foot in length.

With a sharp, startled movement, Alan swung himself bodily about, so that, seated again astride the girder, he faced the assassin who sat up, straddling the girder, his feet hooked beneath it a stiletto poised in his right hand to strike.

But even now Alan was in little or no better case than before. If he faced the thug, he faced him with no arms other than his bare hands. He had not even a pen-knife in his pockets.

With a low cry of desperation Alan snatched off his hat, a soft and shapeless felt affair, and flung it squarely in the fellow's face.

Before he could recover—before, that is, it dropped away and cleared his vision, Alan had bent forward and grasped the wrist of the hand that held the knife.

He snatched simultaneously at the other hand, but it eluded him.

Alan had this advantage, as long as the knife might not strike—that his right arm was free, while the assassin had only his left. With this he strove persistently to reach his knife-hand and possess himself of the weapon. As persistently Alan foiled his purpose by dragging the knife-hand toward him and swinging it far out to one side. At the same time he struck repeatedly with his clenched right fist at the other's face. His blows did little damage beyond disconcerting the other; but this proved a very considerable factor in the duel. In the end, they served together with that steady, relentless downward and outward drag, to break the grip of the man's locked legs.

Abruptly he pitched forward on his face along the girder, kicking wildly, grasping at the air. The stiletto fell from an instinctively relaxed grasp, and disappeared. And before Alan could release his hold, or ease the strain upon the right arm of the assassin, this last had slipped bodily from the girder and hung helpless in space, dangling at the end of Alan's arm—with no more than the grip of five fingers between him and death.

The shock of that unprepared turn brought Alan forward and flat on his stomach. And the strain on his left arm was terrific. He doubted if he could maintain it for another minute. Nor was there any reason why he should retain it. The end he had designed for his victim was merely his just desert.

And yet Alan could not let him go.

Thus the battle began anew—but now it was a battle with a man half-crazed and struggling so madly that he well-nigh frustrated the efforts of his rescuer.

In the upshot the assassin lay like a limp rag across the girder, head and arms dangling on one side, legs and feet on the other, spent with his terrific exertions and physically sick with terror.

And in this state Alan left him: he had done enough; let the man shift for himself from this time on.

Changeling.

In the vague, chill gray of that dull and desolate dawn, Judith stirred abruptly on the couch of a sleepless night, and with the rapidity of one who has arrived at a settled purpose after a long period of doubt and perplexity, rose and bathed and dressed herself in negligee.

In the adjoining room she could hear small, stealthy noises—the sounds made by her sister moving about and preparing against the unguessable moment when her rescue would be attempted, according to the information conveyed in that midnight message.

For chance had conspired with her insomnia to station Judith in the recess of her darkened window, idly viewing the gaunt framework of the unfinished building from an angle which, when Alan edged out along the girder, showed him plainly in silhouette against the sky.

In Judith's eyes his identity was unmistakable. She had hardly needed the night-glasses which presently she brought to bear upon him at the moment when he was laboriously inditing his message—while grim death stalked him from behind.

She had seen him throw the watch and had heard the double thump of its impact with the wall and floor of Rose's bedchamber.

And she had witnessed with wildly beating heart that duel in the air—able to surmise its outcome only from the fact that the victor spared the life of the vanquished.

The clock was striking six as she left her room: across the street workmen were streaming into the building to begin the labors of the day.

Brushing unceremoniously past the drowsy and indifferent guard in the corridor outside the door to Rose's room, Judith turned the key that remained in the lock on the outside, removed it, entered, and locked the door behind her.

Without any surprise she found her sister already dressed to the point of donning her outer garments.

Rendered half-frantic by this unexpected interruption, threatening as it did the perilous scheme that Alan had proposed, Rose greeted her sister with a countenance at once aghast and wrathful.

"What do you want?" she demanded tensely.

"To come to an understanding with you," Judith told her coolly.

"There is no understanding possible between us: you know that as well as I."

"Yet one there must be."

"I insist that you leave this room at once!"

"Insist by all means—and be damned! I may leave this room—and I may not, dear little sister. But one of us will never leave it alive."

With a start of terror, Rose sprang back from this strange, wild thing that wore the very shape and semblance of herself.

"What do you mean? You cannot mean to murder me in cold blood, Judith?"

"Not I!" Judith laughed harshly.

"But, since it has pleased Destiny to decree that we must both love one man—let Destiny decide between us and bear the blame of murder!"

"Judith!"

"One moment!" Crossing to a side table, Judith took up a glass from a tray that held a silver water-pitcher, and returned with it to the table that occupied the middle of the floor. At the same time she opened a hand till then fast clenched and disclosed a small blue bottle with a red label shrieking the warning "POISON!"

"Strychnine," she explained composedly, "in solution." And emptied the bottle into the glass.

A measure of courage returned to Rose. "Do you expect to be able to make me drink that?" she demanded contemptuously.

"Not I—but Destiny, if it will! See here." From a pocket of her dressing-gown Judith produced a sealed deck of playing cards. "Let these declare the will of Destiny toward us. I will break the seal, shuffle the cards, and deal," she explained, suiting action to word.

"The one who gets the tray of hearts will drain that glass. Is it a bargain?"

"Never! Oh, now I know that you are altogether mad!"

"Perhaps. Are you ready?" And Judith made as if to deal.

"No—never! I tell you I refuse!"

Rose chattered, terrified.

"You dare not refuse."

"Why?"

"Because of this."

Whipping a small revolver from another pocket of her dressing-gown, Judith placed it on the table, ready to her hand.

"You will shoot me if I do not consent?"

"Not you—but him. If you refuse, little sister, I will shoot Alan Law dead when he comes to keep his appointment with you."

"Ah!" Rose cried in mingled fright and amazement. "How did you find out?"

"Never mind. Is it a bargain, now, about the tray of hearts? Remember, I shall keep my word about this pistol."

With a shudder Rose bowed her head.

"Deal," she muttered fearfully, "and may God judge between us!"

One by one she stripped the cards from the top of the deck, dealing first to Rose, then to herself.

One by one they fluttered to the table on either side the glass of poison, and fell face uppermost.

The tray of hearts fell to Judith.

There was an instant of silent dread, ended by Rose, as Judith's hand moved steadily toward the glass.

"Judith!" she implored. "Don't—I beg of you—I didn't mean it—I take back my consent—"

"Too late!" said Judith, lifting the glass and eyeing its contents with a strange smile.

"Judith! you cannot mean to drink it?"

"Can't I, though?" the other laughed mirthlessly. "Just watch me!"

With a strangled cry Rose covered her face with her hands to shut out the sight, stood momentarily swaying, and dropped to the floor in a complete faint.

Delaying only to recognize this phenomena with a pitying smile for the weakness of spirit that caused it, Judith's glance darted through the window and saw that which caused her to stay her hand an instant longer.

On the topmost tier of girders of the building opposite, Alan Law stood amid a little knot of amused and animated laborers, one foot in the great steel hook of the hoisting tackle, both hands clasping the chain that linked it to the gigantic block.

And as Judith stared, he smiled at something said by one of those about him, looked back, and waved a hand to some person invisible.

Immediately the arm began to lift, the tackle to move slowly through the blocks. Very gently he was swung up and outward.

With a cry Judith flung the poison heedlessly from her, leaped across the room, and snatched up the street garments Rose had dropped at her sister's entrance.

In another moment she was struggling madly into them.

Before the shadow of Alan, clinging to the hook and chain, fell athwart the

Give Old Diogenes a Chance—Be Honest With Yourself

PROCRUSTATION is the thief of saving. Don't say to yourself, "I'm going to start a bank account just as soon as I pay those bills." Pay your bills by all means, but put something in the bank at once. Alan exulted in the innocence of his heart. "But I think it is. And those workmen think it a great lark—I told them the simple truth, you see: that we were eloping!"

By way of answer Judith breathed only a word of tenderness.

And that instant the hook paused and Alan stepped off upon the sidewalk.

"Safe and sound—and not a soul over there the wiser as yet!" he declared with a derisive nod toward the home of Trine. "Come along. Here's a limousine waiting. In twenty minutes we'll be at the ferry, in forty over in Jersey, within an hour married, within four hours safe at sea!"

NO CURE FOR FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

Several cases of the dreaded foot and mouth disease have made their appearance in Kentucky. Let every farmer of Fulton county keep a sharp watch on his stock for any symptoms of the disease. Once it starts there is no telling where it will stop.

The mouth and foot disease is just as foreign to the United States as Asiatic cholera and it is just about as contagious and fatal. It is called the mouth and foot disease because these are the only affected parts. It rots off the hoof and causes to sluff off all the mucous membrane of the mouth. It is slow in process and stock affected with it have to be killed to prevent prolongation of suffering as well as to prevent the spread of the disease. There is absolutely no cure for it. Its introduction into the United States has been traced to a lot of hides shipped from Argentina to a Pacific Coast State. Teams of oxen hauled these hides to the tannery and developed the mouth and foot disease and from this beginning it has spread to seven states already and many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of cattle have been killed in the effort to prevent the spread of the disease. Whenever an animal is found with it the necessity arises at once to slaughter all the stock on the place and to bury them immediately. It is the most serious matter for all the farmers and stock raisers of this country and unless it can be eradicated by drastic measures it is impossible to estimate the tremendous losses which will result. It affects cattle, hogs and sheep but no cases have been reported among horses and they may be immune to it. In several instances young children have taken it.

ANTI-TRUST LAW BEFORE COURT

ARGUMENT ON APPEAL OF IMPERIAL TOBACCO COMPANY FROM CONVICTION.

WILL ACCEPT NEW ESTIMATES

Employees Are Given Opportunity To Revise Their Payrolls—Action To Cover Reductions.

Frankfort.—Construction of the Kentucky anti-trust laws, since the supreme court of the United States declared the anti-trust laws, as interpreted with the Crecellus act permitting pooling by growers, unconstitutional, was asked of the court of appeals in the appeal of the Imperial Tobacco Co. from the judgment of the Union circuit court, penalizing it $3,500 on a charge of conspiring to depress the price of tobacco in Henderson county below its fair value.

Both the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Kentucky and the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Great Britain and Ireland, Limited, were penalized $3,500. The case was transferred to Union county from Henderson, where the indictment was returned, but as Union county is in the Henderson stemming district, the company complained that it could not have a fair trial there. Several grounds for reversal are presented in the appeal, which was argued, but both the company and the commonwealth dwelt at length on the effect of the decision of the United States supreme court in the International Harvester Co. case.

The court of appeals construed the Crecellus pooling act of 1896 into the anti-trust law as requiring the charge of pooling to control prices to include pooling for the purpose of depressing or raising the price below or above a fair value of the article. The supreme court held this latter to be illusory and impossible of defining so that the defendant could know when he was violating the law. In substance, Commonwealth's Attorney S. V. Dixon, of Henderson, insisted that the court should uphold the anti-trust law as interpreted prior to the enactment of the Crecellus pooling act, and hold the latter, as well as Section 198 of the constitution, providing for the passage of laws to prohibit the depressing or raising of prices below or above the fair value of the article void.

Train Accommodations.

The Christian circuit court fined the Louisville & Nashville railroad $500 for violating the section of the separate-coach law, which requires that the railroads "shall make no discrimination in the quality, convenience and accommodations in the cars and coaches or partitions" reserved respectively for white and colored passengers. While two lavatories, one for males and one for females, were maintained in white coaches passing through Hopkinsville, in partitioned coaches, half of which were reserved for colored passengers, one lavatory only was provided, and it was charged that this was discrimination. The court of appeals reversed the judgment, holding that the law does not specifically require two lavatories to a coach or compartment, one for each sex, and considering the relative proportion of colored passengers to white, the number of lavatories substantially complies with the requirements of the statute. "When there is a practical, substantial equality in the accommodations," said the court in an opinion by Judge Hannah, "there is no discrimination," and added that "equality of accommodations does not mean identity of accommodations."

Fined One Cent.

George Kimbly, student at the Kentucky Normal and Industrial Institute, who was expelled for insubordination in chapel when the students started a petition for the removal of President G. P. Russell, was fined one cent in the county court for breach of the peace and the case against 16 others were dismissed.

Two Special Judges.

Acting Gov. McDermott has appointed Judge Charles Marshall to preside November 23 over the Hart circuit court. He also appointed A. E. Strickland, special judge of the Kenton circuit court, to preside at the trial of the Commonwealth against Walter Gibson.

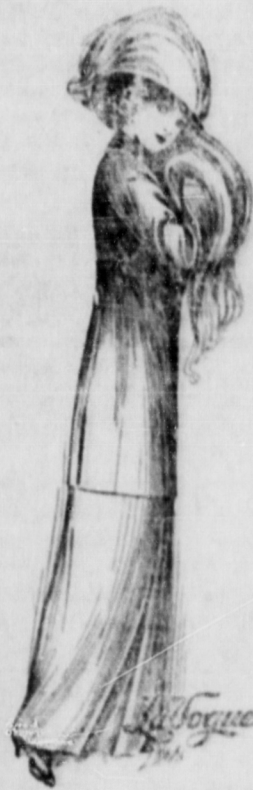

Teachers Are Paid.

Rural school teachers were paid. State Treasurer Rhea disbursed $554,808.24 of the state school fund, of which $450,638.88 went to the county schools and $104,169.36 to the city schools.

Accidents Cause Two Deaths.

John W. Holmes, 61, engineer for the Paducah Water Co., fell into a hole at the water-pumping station here and died within four hours. At the time of the accident he was on the second floor of the pumping plant and in stepping backward fell into the hole, falling 35 feet to solid rock. He suffered an extended fracture at the base of the skull and his leg was broken in two places. Dudley Shark, 48, was killed at Bridgeport, this county by a falling log. He died within two hours after the accident.

DIDN'T LOSE "UNCLE SI."

A city man recently visited his "country cousin." The man from the city, wishing to explain the joy of metropolitan life, said: "We have certainly been having fun the last few days. Thursday we autoed to the country club, and golfed until dark, then trolled back to town and danced until morning." The country cousin was not to be stumped in the least, so began telling of some of his pleasures of the simple life: "We have had pretty good times here, too. One day we buggied out to Uncle Ned's and went out to the back lot, where we baseballled all the afternoon." A sturdy old farmer who was listening, not to be outdone, took up the conversation at this point and said: "I was having some fun about this time myself. I muled to the cornfield and ge-hawed until sundown. Then I suppered until dark, and piped until one o'clock, after which I bedstedded until the clock fived, after which I breakfasted until it was time to go muleing again."

Interest in Colors of Beards.

The color of beards arouses many points of interest. All the ancient tapestries show Cain and Judas Iscariot with yellow or red beards, and Pontius Pilate in ancient art always was given a beard. (Being a Roman of good family, he probably had no beard; but those details did not trouble the old masters.) A reddish beard, however, does not carry the significance that goes with red hair, for many eminent men with dark brown hair have had reddish beards.

"HOLY ROLLER (?) " BAND HOLDING BIG REVIVAL.

A band of religious workers are conducting a revival in the Elliott building in West Hickman. On account of the peculiarity of the service, we are told, large crowds are attending; in fact, some are being converted to their faith, whatever that may be called. They are referred to as "Holy Rollers" and "Sect of the Unknown Tongue."

Twelve converts were baptised at the river Sunday, and a number of others are to receive this ordinance later.

FOR WORKER AND HIS BOSS

Hot words and fiery talk make even the best of fellows to hate one another.

He that continually thinketh evil of his employer begetteth trouble faster than he can handle it.

A broken pledge halleth the boss into court, and a contract ignored bringeth the union into contempt.

He that despiseth the man ahead of him proclaimeth his own stupidity and hasteneth his own degradation.

The man that is out of a job longeth for work, but when he findeth it he oft forgetteth the man that provideth it.

In the fury of the battle a brick is a boomerang in the hands of a striker or his friend. — Charles Irvin Junkin in Truth.

THE HOME GUARDS

The papers give an account of French aviators killing German soldiers by dropping on them arrows of steel about 5 inches long and a little thicker than a lead pencil. They are dropped in batches of five hundred, a mechanical arrangement spreading them over an area of about 200 yards, from a height of 1,500 feet. From this height they will go through a man's body. If eggs get up to a dollar a dozen in Hickman this winter, as some predict, they ought to be almost as acceptable to the soldiers as meat.

FORECASTERS PREDICT A WHITE CHRISTMAS.

The nature students and goose bone artists have been at work forecasting the weather for the winter season, and the result is a united prediction for a cold time.

A "white Christmas" is the general verdict, and each gives his reason for so declaring. For instance, the out-of-door prophets, farmers and hunters and woodsmen, who have watched the natural phenomena for years, say the weeds have grown very high this year and are heavily laden with seed, and the nut trees are unusually well fruited, conditions which indicate that Mother Nature is providing for the birds and squirrels during a long siege of frost and freeze. Further provision of this sort is noted in the abundance of persimmons and of holly, sumac and swamp dogwood berries, on which the hungry wood tenants come to feed.

Things that burrow in the ground, bugs and grubs and doodles, are said to be going deeper than usual, the idea being to avoid the freezing point below the surface.

Thick moss and lichens on the tree trunks in the frosts say to the wood-chopper that some unseen force is providing additional cover against the biting wind that is later on to blow.

And the goose bone prophet, the learned seer whose word is law to many believers, he finds that the Michaelmas goose wore an exceedingly thick coat of down under his outer feathers, a species of high-neck and long-sleeved flannels that will bid defiance to the coldest day.

Also the breastbone of the fowl was just a little more curved than usual, cupping itself protectingly around the vital "internal revenue." And it had a suggestive blue east in the color, and is marked by certain spots that have a mystic meaning.

And putting all of these together the seer looks wise and serious and says: "A cold winter with a snowy Christmas."

THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

There will be held at the M. E. Church, November 26, a union service. This is in keeping with the proclamation of our President, Woodrow Wilson, which runs in part as follows:

"It has been vouchsafed to us to remain at peace, with honor, and in some part to succor the suffering and supply the needs of those in want. Our people have looked upon their own life as a nation with a deeper comprehension a fuller realization of their responsibilities as well as of their blessings, and a keener sense of the moral and practical significance of what their part among the nations of the world may come to be."

"Our crops will feed all who need food; the self possession of our people amidst the most serious anxieties and difficulties and the steadiness and resourcefulness of our business men will serve other nations as well as our own."

"The business of the country has been supplied with new instrumentalities and the commerce of the world new channels of trade and intercourse. The Panama Canal has been opened. The two continents of America have been bound in closer ties of friendship."

"Never before have the people of the United States been so situated for their own advantage or the advantage of their neighbors or so equipped to serve themselves and mankind."

The papers and magazines say that the day is going to be more generally observed by our people than usual and that the offering of the day in great many places is going to the helpless Belgians. Let there be a large attendance upon this service and let Hickman go down in history with that part of the world which proposes to do the noblest acts for humanity.

There will be suitable song service and the sermon will be delivered by the pastor of the Christian church, Bro. Hampton.

THE COST OF WAR.

Fifty dollars a second, $3,000 a minute, $180,000 an hour or $4,330,000 every twenty-four hours is England's war bill day by day. Germany is losing more than twice that much each twenty-four hours, Russia more than England and Germany combined, and France a close second to Germany. Altogether the 10 warring powers are spending $53,000,000 between each sun up and sun up.

IT REALLY DOES RELIEVE RHEUMATISM.

Everybody who is afflicted with Rheumatism in any form should by all means keep a bottle of Sloan's Liniment on hand. The minute you feel pain or soreness in a joint or muscle, bathe it with Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub it. Sloan's penetrates almost immediately right to the seat of pain, relieving the hot, tender, swollen feeling and making the part easy and comfortable. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against colds, sore and swollen joints, rheumatism, neuralgia sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief. (Advt.)

Rev. R. H. Pigue, of Fulton, was transferred to Murray, Ky., by the Paris conference. For reasons best known to himself, he refuse to go to Murray, stating that he would transfer from the Memphis conference before he would take up the work assigned him. Murray has another pastor, but Rev. Pigue's case is yet to be disposed of.

Even if you save 5 cents on the dollar by buying elsewhere, which is doubtful, you would lose 95 cents on the dollar to your town, which is certain; and if everybody saved the 5 cents and the town always lost the 95 cents you can see where we would all soon be financially.

Only a few more days and the penalty will be added to unpaid county and state taxes.

KILLED AT SAWMILL.

Jesse Ray, operating the edge saw at W. E. Whitson's mill, five miles south of Troy, Tenn., was suddenly killed Saturday morning by a plank getting caught in the saw and reversing itself, striking him in the abdomen. He lived only 40 minutes after the blow. Mr. Ray was about 58 years old and an exemplary citizen. He leaves a wife and several children, among whom is a son, Porter Ray, until recently a resident of Hickman.

PRES. WILSON CALLS HALT ON INSOLENCES.

Offended by the tone and manner of their chairman, W.M.
Trotter, of Boston, President Wilson ended an interview with a delegation of negroes, who called at the White House to protest against race segregation in government departments, with a warning that if the negroes wanted to see him again they would have to get another spokesman. The President said he had not been addressed in such fashion since he entered the White House.

Trotter disputed a statement that there had been danger of friction and took issue with the President. He declared the negro people did not seek charity or assistance, but held that they had equal rights with the whites and that these rights should be respected.

Mr. Wilson waited for the protest to end. Then he told the delegation that he could not discuss the matter further.

Saving The Babies.

Of course old maids and childless couples are better qualified than anybody else to give the advice about the care of babies, but now and then counsel from other sources is worthy of attention. The State Board of Health of New York, has made a remarkable record in the reduction of the death rate of children under one year old. The figures for the last ten years are almost unbelievable, yet they constitute statistical facts. They show in general that only one baby dies where three used to die. Much has been done in New York towns in the way of establishing pure milk stations and inspection and regulating cow stables. But the State Board of Health attributes the reduction in the death rate chiefly to the fact that these simple things have been drilled into the ears of mothers.

Give the baby pure air, day
and night.

Give it no food but mother's milk, milk from the bottle, or food directed by the physician.

When it cries or is fretful, do not offer it food, give it water.

Be sure that it gets enough sleep—two naps during the day at least.

Do not put clothing on it.
Bathe it in a tub every day.
Don't handle it, leave it alone.

Cheerfulness.

We wonder if we all have an idea of what the definition of cheerfulness is; the dictionary says, good spirit or mirth. But no matter what the definition is, if we do not apply it or put it into practical use. How often we see a dear girl who is homely but has hosts of friends, and we see another girl who is indeed beautiful but no persons seem to love her, nor even care to associate with her. This is the reason the first girl is happy and cheerful who has a smile and pleasant word for old and young, rich and poor, and who is ever glad and happy, not one day pleasant and the other cross and gloomy. Whereas, the beautiful girl, we are sorry to say is not always, but very often, is selfish and spoiled, and if she cannot do as she pleases, or the weather is unpleasant when she wants to go away, she is cross and unpleasant, and very often seeks a little bit.

Hereafter.

The generation of man is like the leaves of the trees—green in youth; now withering on the ground. And thus the generation of the race decays; so follows these as those who have passed away. Then bear in mind our steps of time, and let not our angry passions arise against our fellow persons. Let not our tongues repeat one word that others will cause a frown or sadness. But ever live a sunshine to all whether friends or foe. For soon life's storms will all be still, and all life's noise into calm will pass; then rest and quietness will come at last. What matters then which it be, love or hate. Calm hands are folded over quiet breasts. Our weary heads will be billowed in sweet rest. Our deathless soul in their words shall live. Our life is but the passing picture of a shadowed dream.
Then paint the picture of joy and happiness and not as the world would have it, sorrow and happiness.

Thanksgiving.

Giving God thanks for safe arrival and many other blessings was first heard on New England shores from the lips of Popham colonists at Monhegan, in the thanksgiving service of the Church of England. The first Thanksgiving was observed in December 1621. This was a week of feasting. Venison was brought in by the Massasoit Indians and dozens of wild turkeys, rabbits and smaller game were slaughtered for the feast. The Indians were invited to join the whites in the merrymaking, an invitation which was promptly accepted.
The records make no mention of any special religious exercises during the week of feasting. In July 1623 a fast day of nine hours of prayer was observed by these same colonists, who were suffering from the effects of a prolonged drought which had

MRS. MABEN WAS MADE WELL

Other Suffering Women
To Know It.

Murfreesboro, Tenn. — "I have wanted to write to you for a long time to tell you what your wonderful remedies have done for me. I was a sufferer from female weakness
and displacement and I would have such tired, worn out feelings, sick headaches and dizzy spells. Doctors did me no good so I tried the Lydia E. Pinkham Remedies—Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. I am now well and strong and can do all my own work. I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and want other suffering women to know about it."—Mrs.
H. E. MABEN, 211 S. Spring St., Murfreesboro, Tenn.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

scorched their corn and stunted their beans. The rain which soon afterward fell they believed could not have come but for their united and public petition.

The next public Thanksgiving was held in Boston by the Bay Colony, on February 22, 1630.
This was an expression of gratitude for the safe arrival of food bearing ships from England.
From then until 1864, there were about twenty-four Thanksgiving Days appointed in Massachusetts but it was not a regular biennial custom. In 1766, a time of deep gloom in both Massachusetts and Connecticut on account of many attacks from fierce savages, no days of Thanksgiving were celebrated.

The people who have so much sympathy for those who have gone beyond all earthly help, might use a little of it in everyday life to a good and excellent purpose. The idea of kicking people when alive and then for a person to weep over their grave when dead, is one reason why the world is no better today.
Speak your kind words to the living and when you are dead you need not care what is said of you.

Prohibition has seldom been given a fair trial. To pass the law and then put a "whiskey officer" in to enforce it, and when it fails as it must under such conditions, to say "I told you so," is merely "monkeying" with the question. What we need and the people demand is a prohibition law and a prohibition

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; this inflammation is caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition
of the mucous surface.

HISTORY OF FAMOUS MASON AND DIXON LINE.

Then

One hundred and fifty-one years ago Monday two English surveyors, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, began the survey of what is known as the Mason and Dixon line between the states of Pennsylvania and Maryland. This line afterwards became famous as the supposed boundary between the North and the South, or between the free and slave holding states. From it came "Dixie," the cognomen for the South, which has been immortalized in song and story. The line was surveyed at the instance of William Penn and Lord Baltimore. The surveyors were three years in making the survey from the northeast corner to the foot of Savage Mountain. In 1767 the work was finished from the latter point to Virginia, now West Virginia. The line is said to have cost $300,000, and the surveyors employed an army of 100 axmen and a road 30 feet wide was cut through the dense forest. A mixture of sand and limestone of light brown grayish color was brought over from England to mark the line, and these stones were set up at intervals of a mile apart wherever it was possible to erect them. They weighed 500 pounds and were 4½ feet high. On some parts of the line the country was so rugged that mounds of dirt and rock had to be substituted for these stones.

Now.

Today the Mason and Dixon line has been resurveyed and remarked and divested of its chief erroneous traditions. In 1849 a revision of the line was made by a joint commission from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware, and it was then found that the original survey was so nearly accurate that the change involved by the correction amounted to less than two acres, which were added to Maryland. In 1903 Pennsylvania and Maryland each appropriated $5,000 for the restoration of the line. Many of the peculiar English stones had disappeared and the commission made an exhaustive search for them. The identification was an easy task, for on breaking them the stones emitted a sulphurous odor. So thorough was the search that some were found in the curbing of streets and in people's cellars. One was taken from the walls of an old stone church, where it had done service for many years. In the place of those that could not be found new stones of marble were set up. On every fifth one of these the coat of arms of William Penn was cut on the Pennsylvania side, and on the Maryland side the escutcheon of Lord Baltimore was placed. On the others the single monogram P. and M. was cut. The stones are now set so near one another, even in the mountain regions, that the traveler may stand at a stone and see the next one.

The Pike county grand jury has adjourned, breaking all records for a probe of election frauds in this state when it reported indictments against 1,200 persons, who are charged with selling their votes, perjury in connection with elections, or illegal use of railroad passes.

PLANS TO DEVELOP GAS WELLS BELOW TOWN.

We are just learning that A. A. Faris has leased from J. D. Leach, on his place seven miles below town in the lower bottom, all "underground" privileges, or in plain United States, the rights to oil or gas.

As told in these columns several weeks ago, a well was sunk on this place for water but was abandoned when a generous supply of gas issued from it. A pump was put in and the gas pressure was strong enough to work the iron pump handle. When ignited, a blaze would flare up several feet high above the well. After examining it, Mr. Faris concluded gas could be found in paying quantities on this place and has, accordingly, leased the privilege of developing gas or oil wells. Two other wells have been sunk by Mr. Faris and both furnish a big supply natural gas. One of them, he claims, will burn thirty feet high. It "blow out" in process of digging and has been capped on account of the danger of escaping gas.

The prospector received this week several hundred feet of pipe or casing to be used in his further experiments. He will begin, when cotton picking is over and labor available, the sinking of a deep well with a ten inch casing. This will be put down two or three thousand feet, if necessary. Time and again experts have declared oil could be found in this section and Mr. Faris has been prompted by the find of gas and various signs of oil to make the attempt to find it.

The gas which has been found in such abundance in these shallow wells evidently escapes from a large pocket further down, and it is more than probable that it will be found in paying quantities. There are also the prospects of oil, which are worth trying out.

Good for the Teeth.

Carbonate of soda is good to use occasionally as a tooth powder, as it prevents decay. A mixture of fine salt and weak vinegar water will cleanse yellow teeth, as will also a paste made of pulverized pumice stone and peroxide of hydrogen lightly rubbed on the teeth. To prevent decay between the teeth draw dental floss through them every day. This will save you suffering and reduce your dentist bills.

EPISCOPAL BAZAAR.

The ladies of the Episcopal church will hold their annual bazaar, Dec. 3rd, at Cowgill's Drug Store. They will be ready to receive customers at 2:30 p. m. Everybody is cordially invited to come.

The Courier respectfully requests all advertisers to get their copy to us as early as convenient next week, in order that our force may enjoy a half-day off Thanksgiving.

You will have occasion to be thankful if you buy your groceries, fruits, candies, nuts, canned goods, etc. from Jennings.

J. W. Jennings will leave Sunday for St. Louis to purchase new goods for the "Headlight Store."

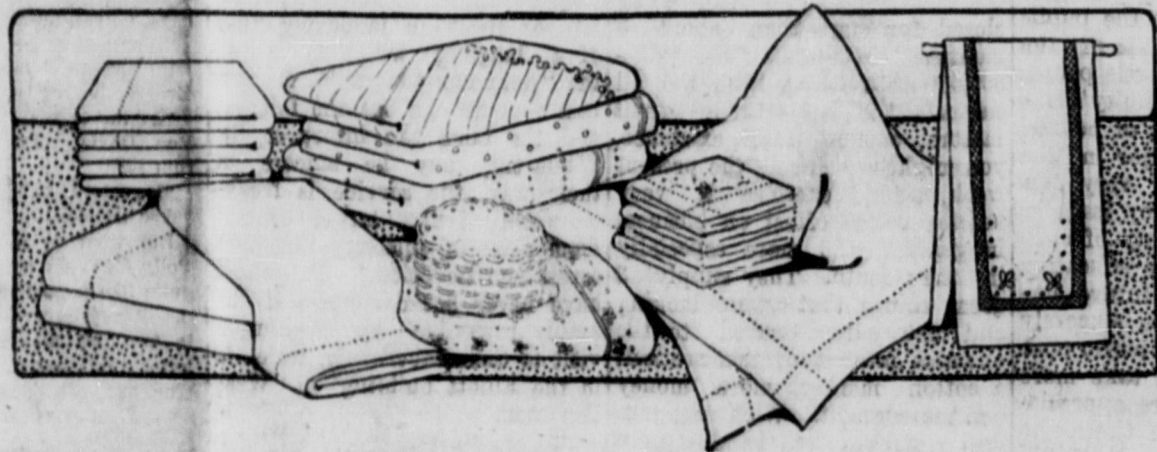

Caps in all the fancy plaids, modest mixtures and solid colors at Leibovitz, the Live Store.

News Snapshots Of the Week

The spread of the foot and mouth disease all over the country resulted in the closing of the Chicago stockyards for the first time since they were opened. Hundreds of cattle were slaughtered in various sections and hurriedly buried in trenches. William Rockefeller, one of the former directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, gave bond for his appearance for trial under the indictment charging him and other directors with violating the Sherman law. The cruiser North Carolina, commanded by Captain Oman, was reported sunk by a mine, but the report proved false. Henry Siegel, the New York banker, was put on trial on a charge of grand larceny. R. J. Burdette, the noted humorist, was reported to be dying in his California home. Edward Lauterbach was indicted on a charge of conspiracy. The Australian cruiser Sydney destroyed the German cruiser Hinden at Cocos island. The losses in the war in Europe continued to be heavy.

Thanksgiving Sale of Linens

In The Face of The Scarcity and High Prices Caused by The War We Offer the Best Values Ever in Fine Mellow Table Linens of All Sorts

We have had linen displays in previous years; in fact, it is our custom to offer each year, in advance of Thanksgiving Day, a collection of special values in these goods. But the display that we start today will surpass in quality, quantity and value any that have preceded it.

Our orders for these linens were placed early in the Spring, and we received the lowest of the then low prices. Since they arrived in our store prices have advanced from 20 to 40%. This is due to the discontinuance of imports brought about by war. When this stock of ours is exhausted, it is doubtful if linens of equal quality will be obtainable in this town for many years at anything like their prices during this display.

We earnestly advise you to buy now, not only the linens you will want for Thanksgiving Day, but the linens you will want for future use. Judge for yourself how low our Prices are:

Table Cloths at, per yard	25c, 50c, 75c, $1.00 to $1.50
Napkins at, per doz	$1.25, $2.00, $2.50 to $5.00
Scarfs at	25c, 50c to $3.50
Doilies at	15c, 25c to 50c
Tea Sets, colored, at	$3.50
Linen Set, bleached, at	$5.50
Table Cloths, ready-made	$3.50 and $6.00

CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES.

On account of the storm on last Sunday evening, and a misunderstanding about building the fire, it was impossible to have the lecture at the Crystal Theater as announced, though a large number came to hear it.

It is hoped however, that the weather will be good on next Sunday night, and that all who desire to hear it, may be present, as it will be given unless the weather should be such as to render it impossible. Remember the subject: "The Battle of the Bible for Supremacy."

If the gentleman now singing at the Crystal is here on next Sunday night, and it is understood he will be, he will sing one of the two solos, one of which will be "The Holy City." The other will be "The Perfect Day." Mrs. Lewis has consented to play the piano on Sunday night and will play a voluntary at the beginning of the service.

The regular session of the Bible school at 9:45 in the morning at the church with the morning sermon and communion following.

Fair audiences have been attending the brief meeting conducted in West Hickman this week.

THE HICKMAN COURIER

"Covers Western Kentucky Like the Dew"
SPEER & SEXTON, PUBLISHERS

Subscription rates $1.00 per year.

(When the attention of The Hickman Courier is called to any mis-statement of facts, or to any error concerning any man or thing, correction will cheerfully be made.)

From week to week, the Courier has been printing some very able and interesting articles, under the caption of "County School Notes," written by our popular County School Superintendent Miss Virginia Luten. Miss Luten is seeking to keep the pupils, teachers and parents interested in school work, and the very best way to keep in touch with the progress of educational work in Fulton county is to read the Courier. Our teachers, as well as the superintendent, are not always given proper encouragement; we show a lack of interest in school work; our visits to the school room are too few. This situation, we believe, is gradually improving. An evidence of greater interest was manifested at the recent school fair, which, by the way, is a most excellent method of arousing enthusiasm. The fair will help to unify the different schools of the county. It will greatly help weaker teachers and will add more strength to the stronger ones. It will show to the pupils that the men and women of the county recognize the little people as a part of the community's life, minor for the present of course, but destined to be major in the near future. On the very face of it, there is not any issue or project in Fulton county of such vast importance as the education of our children—our future citizens—and it is to be sincerely hoped that we become better posted in school matters; take more interest and show more appreciation of the efforts of those who are continually striving for higher standards. If your teacher is faithful and painstaking with his or her work, compliment them. In turn, the child will stand some of the same treatment and profit by it. Much depends upon the parent, and for that reason you should know what Fulton county schools stand for—what they teach, how they are taught; in short, what is contemplated and what going on in educational matters.

THE McCONKEYS

Comedy Artists, at the Crystal tonight and Saturday night.

Monday the federal reserve bank scheme was put into operation, augmenting their available supply of cash to the extent of 150 millions. On the same day the stock exchanges again open for business after being closed for more than about 3 months. Wednesday the $135,000,000 cotton loan fund was all subscribed. These three great factors coming into existence, you might say during the present week, should exercise a very healthy moral effect on business in general, and more especially in the South. They supply 3 great things that were lacking and materially essential to the business interest of this section; a cotton market, more money and more credit. With vast natural resources at hand it only remains for us to go after business and forget that a war is going on. The best of the season is yet ahead of us; its short, but a lot of business can be crowded into it if we wake up and go after it. The Courier will have only four more issues before Christmas. The successful, up-to-date, modern business house advertisers. They pull trade by the liberal use of printers' ink. If you have goods to sell—make the best of the next four weeks. Let's make things hum from now until Christmas. There is no longer any "panic" on; business is good and getting better every day. Don't cry over spilled milk go after new business. The biggest area of prosperity we've ever experienced is just ahead.

Why pay $22.00 to $27.00 for a suit when you can get what you want at Leibovitz for $15.00?

Mrs. Vera Thomas is here from Dyersburg this week.

One of the most singular forms of religious worship may be seen in this city at a revival now in progress in West Hickman. This band, in the course of their services, reach a point where they become animated and articulate or speak in jabbering kind of a language which is called the "unknown tongue." Its certain that no one but the faithful and the Lord can interpret it. While they may be sincere in their way, the service is freakish and draws larger crowds from point of curiosity than interest and devotion. Those who have never heard them will be amply rewarded by making a visit to their tabernacle, which is in the Elliott building in West Hickman.

Mrs. Martha Barrett has returned from Indianapolis, where she has been the guest of her daughter for several weeks. The daughter has just moved into an elegant new home, a feature of which is that the partitions of the house are constructed of glass almost an inch thick, solid glass sliding doors. There are also more than 50 windows in the house. This is one family that should "not throw stones," according to the old adage.

If you need a new hat or cap Leibovitz Live Store has just the style, shape and color that will suit you.

POLLY'S THANKSGIVING

How a Little Girl Got a Holiday All For Her Very Own.

SUCH a funny little roly poly Polly as she was, with her big china blue eyes, that were forever seeing something to wonder about, and her round, red cheeks, that always grew redder when anybody spoke to her, and her crinkly, daxon hair, that never would stay in place. Such a queer dumpling of a Polly!

All the same, she liked nice things to eat as well as any one could, and when once upon a time somebody gave her the measles just in season for Thanksgiving day she felt dreadful about it and cried as hard as she knew how because she couldn't have any turkey nor pudding nor mince pie for dinner—nothing at all but oatmeal gruel.

But crying didn't help the measles a mite, as, of course, Polly knew it wouldn't. But she couldn't have helped crying if she wanted to, and she didn't want to.

"Most anybody 'd cried, I wouldn't wonder," she said a day or two after, when the measles had begun to go away again, "not to have a mite of any Thanksgiving for dinner—not any pie, not any cranberry sauce, not any—oh dear!"

"Well, well," said Polly's mother, laughing. "I guess we'll have to have another Thanksgiving day right off."

"Oh, can we?" cried Polly, brightening up.

"Not unless the governor says so," answered her father, with a twinkle. "The governor makes Thanksgiving days, Polyanthus."

"Where does he live?" asked Polly, with an earnestness that was funny. Everybody laughed.

"At the capital," said Polly's Uncle Ben Davis. "Do you know where that is?"

"I guess I do," said Polly, and she asked no more questions.

But what do you guess this funny Polly did? By and by, when she felt quite like herself again, she borrowed pencil and paper and shut herself up in her own little room and wrote a letter that looked a little queer, 'tis true, but still made her wishes known:

DeRe Mr. TELL GUYNER, will you please Make Another THANKSGIVING DAY be Caws I had THE MEASLES the Last One, Polly Pinkham.

Then she folded the letter and put it in an envelope and sealed it and took 2 cents out of her bank for the postage and ran away as fast as she could run.

Mr. Willey kept the postoffice, and if he himself had been behind the glass boxes that day I don't believe Polly's letter would ever have gone out of Tinkerville. But Mr. Willey's niece was there. She read the address on the envelope Polly handed in, and her eyes danced, it looked so funny:

Miss GUYNER, at the CAPITOL. One or two questions brought out the whole story.

"The governor shall have your letter, Polly," roguish Miss Molly said as she stamped it and postmarked it. And so he did, for, not quite a week later, a letter came in the mail for Polly—a great white letter with a picture in one corner that made Polly's father open his eyes.

"Why, it's the state's arms!" said he. "What under the sun?"

But I think he suspected. Oh, how red Polly cheeks were and how her small fingers trembled when she tore open her letter! It was printed so that she could read it herself, all but the long words.

Dear Miss Polly—Your letter received. I am very sorry you were so ill as not to be able to eat any Thanksgiving dinner. It was quite too bad. I hereby appoint a special Thanksgiving day for you—next Thursday, Dec. 3—which I trust may be kept with due form. Your friend and well-wisher, ANDREW COLBURN.

"Oh, oh, oh!" said Polly, hopping on one foot. "Will you, mother? Oh, mother, will you? I wrote to him myself. Oh, I'm so glad!"

"Did you ever?" cried Polly's mother. "Why, Polly Pinkham?" But Polly's father slapped his knee and laughed.

"Good for Governor Colburn! I'll vote for him as long as he wants a vote. And Polly shall have a special Thanksgiving worth telling of, so she shall!"

And so she did have, the very best she ever remembered.—A. C. Stoddard in Youth's Companion.

COTTON CHARITY BALL NEXT TUESDAY EVENING.

A number of Hickman ladies are planning a charity cotton ball for next Tuesday night, to be held at the Elks Club room. One feature of this affair is that all persons attending—both ladies and gentlemen—must wear cotton clothing. A prize will be given for the best cotton dress and one for the best cotton suit worn on this occasion. A small fee will be charged—although it is an invitation affair—and this money will be donated to a Christmas fund for sending Santa among our poor and needy. Refreshments will be served and the hall is to be decorated in a la cotton.

Along with other regulations for hunters, it would be well to remember to ask permission to hunt on the farms in this vicinity. Some of the farmers have very strenuous objections to hunting on their land.

Private Robt. Tyler Chapter, U. D. C., of Hickman, is generous to a fault. At a recent state meeting, it was learned that the fund for the old soldier's home at Pewee Valley was insufficient and the U. D. C. decided to subscribe a thousand dollars to the fund. It was made up in exactly 20 minutes. The Hickman Chapter, through their representative, Miss Marie Brevard, subscribed $50, which, with one exception, was the largest amount given by any one chapter.

Mrs. W. H. Baltzer, accompanied by her husband, returned last night from Nashville, where she has been for the past seven weeks in a hospital. Mrs. Baltzer's health seems greatly improved.

Gen. H. A. Tyler and Miss Marie Brevard returned last week from a four weeks' trip at Frankfort, St. Louis and other points.

It Is Cold Enough For Heavier ...Apparel...

We Are Prepared to Meet Your Requirements With An Uncommonly Fine Stock of Winter Suits, Coats, Dresses, And Other Garments.

When the crisp winds of late Autumn whistle through the streets, one realizes more than ever that apparel is, after all, more a matter of comfort than of style. Of course, you want your coat or suit to be becoming—to be attractive; but even before that you want it warm enough to protect you from the cold and light enough in weight not to be burdensome.

The designers of woman's apparel have met this demand with considerable ingenuity. They have produced garments that are eminently practical and at the same time bubbling over with style and grace. They have made them of handsome fabrics that have warmth without weight.

We have the best of these styles, all priced fairly. They await your inspection.

FIRST SNOW OF SEASON CAME THIS MORNING.

The first snow of the season began falling in this section about 7:30 this morning, bringing with it real wintery weather. The ground was soon covered.

Our first snow last year fell on Oct. 23rd, almost a month ahead of the one this year, at which time the ground was covered to a depth of three inches.

WOMAN DRAWS GUN ON A WOULD-BE ESCORT.

Police Court Judge Amberg was called out of bed last night at 11:30 to hear the troubles of a trio, two young men of West Hickman and a girl, who is said to be from Mound City, Ill., which occurred immediately after the close of revival services held by the "Holy Rollers." The trouble was brought about by one of the young men being over anxious to escort the young woman to her home. She was so opposed to his company that she drew a 22 calibre pistol on him. Policeman Joe Wall appeared on the scene about this time and arrested them. One young man was fined $16.50; the other $26.50 and the woman $26.50. The latter's fine was held up on the condition that she caught the first train out of town. The court kept her gun as a souvenir.

TURKS FIRED ON U. S. CRUISER TENNESSEE.

It is officially reported that Turks fired on a squad of sailors, who were in a small launch, making a landing from the United States Cruiser Tennessee at Smyrna, a Turkish port. They were compelled to return to the cruiser. Seey. Daniels has called on Capt. Decker, of the Tennessee for a full report. If this report warrants, Turkey will be asked to stand up and give an account of the affair. It is to be sincerely hoped that Uncle Sam will not have to eat this bread of Turkey for his Thanksgiving dinner, but complications are highly probable.

$135,000,000 COTTON LOAN FUND READY.

The country wide effort to furnish aid to cotton producers and find a bottom for the cotton market came to a successful conclusion Wednesday when Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo announced the completion of the $135,000,000 cotton loan fund. In making his announcement Mr. McAdoo declared the success of the plan was now assured.

The secretary's statement came at the end of a day devoted to efforts to secure the subscriptions necessary to complete the $100,000,000 portion of the fund assigned to banks in non-cotton producing states.

The carrying out of this plan is going to be beneficial, not only in helping the cotton situation but also by promoting the general prosperity of the country, which now has such happy impulse that it would be difficult to retard it.

Speaking of the matter Mr. McAdoo said: "The success of this plan at no time has been in doubt, but its completion has been delayed by the selfish opposition of certain textile manufacturers and local interests, who have tried to defeat it. I am happy to say, for the sake of the country as well as for themselves, that they have been unsuccessful."
